Upto this date The Hi-Fi's and Vern Rogers had played some 50 gigs in the Park Lane Ballroom. Owner Ed Waller liked the group and advertised that they would be playing another season.

16th July1960	CROYDON	PARK LANE BALLROOM

Posters around Croydon advertised a new season of Saturday night dances at the Park Lane Ballroom, beginning in July with 'Pop music's Brightest band' - The Hi-Fi's. With over 50 appearances at Park Lane, the group had built up a solid reputation as Croydon's best rock 'n' roll band, but the 'bright' tag probably came from their penchant for wearing tangerine and purple jackets on stage.

The group comprised guitarist Len 'Sandstorm' Ford, Al Stainer on bass, pianist Brian Bennett, Mel Wright on drums and 19 year old vocalist Vern Rogers. The Croydon Advertiser noted that the dancers applaud the group for the quality of their dance music, but
